Performance Update 1Q 2015

Key Figures Overview

(million tonnes)	1Q 2015	1Q 2014	%	FY 2014
Sales volume	2.53	3.05	(17%)	12.28
- Export sales	2.05	2.56	(20%)	10.37
- Domestic sales	0.48	0.49	(2%)	1.92
Production volume	2.70	2.93	(8%)	12.13
(US$ million)
Revenue	720	862	(17%)	3,559
Net revenue ¹	612	649	(6%)	2,785
Average export potash price, FCA (US$/tonne)	256	215	19%	233

- In 1Q 2015, production at Uralkali fell as a result of decreased output capacity following the accident at the Solikamsk-2 mine
- Average export price increased by 19% compared to 1Q 2014

Export price increase almost offset the decline in volumes resulting in a moderate impact on Net revenue

1. Net Revenue represents Revenue net of freight, railway tariff and transshipment costs

Current Situation

- The situation at the Solikamsk-2, where in November 2014 a higher level of brine inflow and hydrogen sulphide was detected, is currently stable
- In co-ordination with Rostekhnadzor, Uralkali continues to implement the plan to address the consequences of the accident and mitigate the potential negative impact:
 - Pumping brine from the inflow area
 - Proceeding with works to strengthen the cut-off walls between the Solikamsk-1 and Solikamsk-2 fields
 - Started tamping the sinkhole
 - Backfilling the worked-out areas of the mine to reduce rock mass deformation using the hydraulic method

New Mine

- Major part of reserves on the exploited area have been already extracted, remaining reserves are located outside of the endangered exploited area
- To sustain pre-accident volumes of production the Board of Directors approved the Solikamsk -2 project:
 - Construction of two new shafts by 2020
 - Projected capacity c.2.3 mln tonnes KCl per year, projected life of mine c.35 years
 - Estimated CAPEX c. US$723 mln
- This project will allow to mine the remaining reserves of Solikamsk-2 and feed the Solikamsk-2 production facility
- In 2015, Uralkali is carrying out design engineering works of the new mine

Potash Demand Environment in 1H 2015

- Inventory destocking and currency volatility in major markets were driving customers to postpone the purchase of fertilizer until the last minute
- Delayed planting season in the US affected potash demand in Q1 2015
- In Europe, farmers cut application rates to reduce expenses in a lower grain price environment
- Very tight credit availability and higher beginning levels of inventories, have forced down potash demand in Brazil
- Although Chinese contract settlement boosted global shipment volumes, it didn't give a greater confidence to the market
- In SEA markets and India, potash demand remained healthy

Global potash demand is estimated to have softened in 1H 2015

Notes:

- Inventories don't include domestic potash producers' stocks, excl. China
- Including domestic producers' stocks

Source: Uralkali's estimates

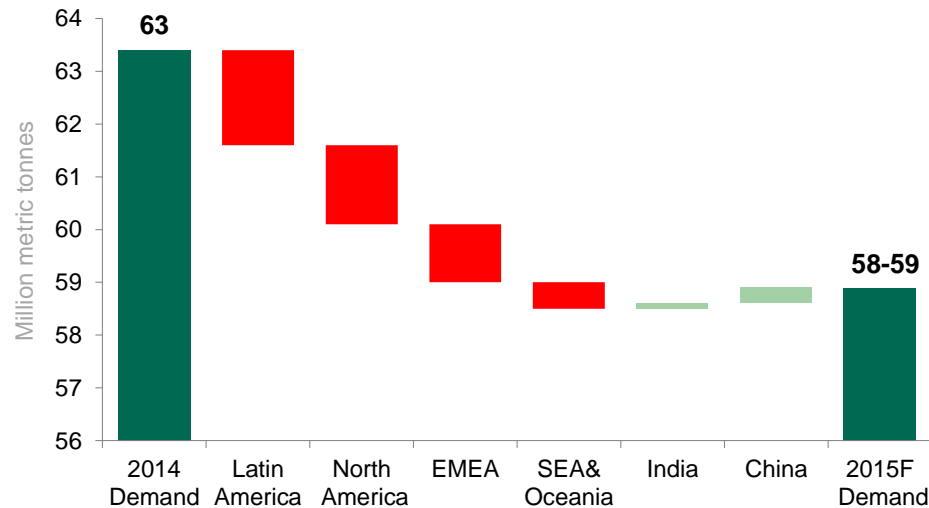

Highlights

- Y-o-y lower buying activity in major markets during 1H 2015 and accident at Solikamsk-2 caused a y-o-y decline in Company's sales volumes in 1Q 2015
- Prices in spot markets moved lower amid FOREX weakness, destocking, and strong competition
- Destocking trends in key markets are clear, and season inventory are expected to be drawn down in Brazil and EMEA

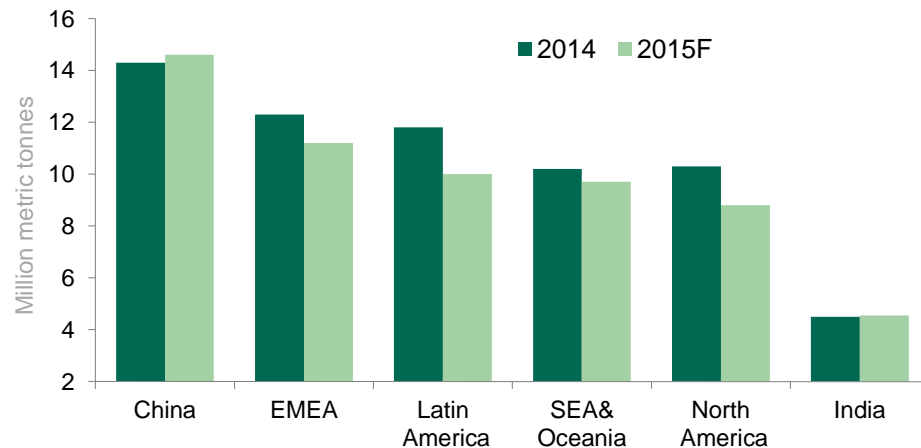

Forward Potash Demand Outlook

2015F global potash demand

Regional potash demand 2014-2015F

Comments

China

- In 2015, potash demand continues to grow
- 2015 potash demand is expected to reach 14.5-14.7 million tonnes

India

- Indian potash imports remained strong during 1H 2015
- Potential upside to demand is limited due to unchanged potash subsidy amid INR depreciation against US$, and delayed monsoon rains

EMEA:

- Lower y-o-y grain prices have been impacting potash demand in Europe
- FSU and African markets are expected to demonstrate some increase in potash demand

Latin America:

- Tight credit availability, currency weakness, and lower crop prices have curbed y-o-y import growth in 1H 2015
- Demand is expected to increase in 2H 2015 following a draw-down of potash stocks

SEA

- In 1H 2015, demand remained healthy
- Potential upside to potash imports are limited due to weakening of local currencies against US$
- SEA markets are expected to remain very competitive in 2H 2015

North America

- Delayed planting season affected potash demand in Q1 2015
- Demand is estimated to be lower this year due to reduction in corn planted acreage and delayed spring season

Potash Market Highlights

- Global potash demand noticeably softened in 1H 2015 as potash fundamentals remained challenging amid a difficult agriculture dynamic and destocking cycle
- Potash demand is expected to improve in Q3 2015. The upside to potash demand in Q4 2015 depends on crop price environment and macroeconomic issues in some markets
- The Company expects global potash demand to be down in 2015 with a forecast of 58-59 million tonnes from 63 million tonnes in 2014, reflecting industry destocking during 1Q 2015 and lower grain price environment
